Dear xxxx,

Clover House is writing to ask you for a donation of just £500, £1000 or £2000 to fund their unique undertaking. We need you to work with us to help unhappy children with a range of emotional, behavioural and physical problems. Clover House's distinctive program of therapy, diet and massage has a success rate consistently above 85%.

In 2012, we want to help 100 children this way. Evan is an example of one already transformed by the Clover House program.

Say Hello to Evan...

Evan is 10 years old. He loves football, plays it with his friends all the time and wants to be a professional when he grows up. His teachers see a positive life ahead and he can't wait to go to secondary school.

Last year, things were different.

Evan was having disturbing thoughts and self-harming. He was disruptive, aggressive and defiant at home and school, on the verge of being excluded. He was unhappy and so were his family, friends and teachers. His father knew he was a wonderful boy, saying that he had:

“So many good things to offer. And I could just see it disappearing in front of my eyes.”

Looking back on this time, Evan said “I felt really angry inside and I suppose I was a bit sad as well.”. Life had become upsetting and confusing for Evan and those around him.

Then Evan came to Clover House.

Here, he met John Forster; one of our trusted and experienced team. John works with children to find the root of their troubling behaviours. Once understood, the child works with John to break the mental patterns that encourage their unhappiness.

John is an NLP Master Practitioner and Trainer with a speciality in child therapy. He believes that various behaviours can be traced back to incidents in someone's past. Such events can result in habitual thoughts and emotions that consume a child's thoughts - in turn, guiding their behaviour.

"He made me smile a lot and talked to me and made me think about things."

The two had settled on the comfortable Clover House sofa to talk. During their conversation, Evan revealed that he had been bullied from a young age. John used a specialised technique to help him let go of these bad memories.

The second time they met, Evan had another issue to talk about. He explained that he often found himself being dared to do things by other children and always ended up being caught by the teachers. After talking with John, Evan decided that when he was next dared by others, he would say "After you." and avoid putting himself in trouble. They also worked together to address his feelings of boredom and lack of concentration at school by creating a more peaceful self-image.

"It got a lot better when I came to Clover House...It's better to feel that way than I did before."

In the space of a month, Evan had come on leaps and bounds as a result of the therapy, diet and massage provided by Clover House. Just three sessions and he was working harder at school. The teachers had noticed it and congratulated him on his new attitude. When asked what had changed in his life, he explained "If I ever feel angry, I make it smaller and explain it to my family. But not in an aggressive way, just talking about it.".

Evan hasn't looked back. He continues to use the techniques he has learnt through John and his world is now a calmer place. Things are going really well at home and school. He still plays a lot of football and is even going for trials with Bristol City soon! His Dad reports that:

"The whole atmosphere's a lot calmer. I can now be more loving with Evan and the whole family's got a nicer feel to it."

We need donations to continue this sort of work. Although our standard prices are subsidised, many families still rely on our bursary fund to provide free treatment. These families need £300, £500 or £1000 from you to access our help.

Donate Now.

In 2012, the team hope to treat 100 children. 100 children who are suffering emotionally, physically and mentally. 100 happier, more loving families and bright, new futures. Your donation will give families and children a new start, allowing them techniques of imagery, diet and massage to use over and over.

Send your contribution of £300, £500 or £1000 to Clover House using the self-addressed envelope enclosed. Every donation helps another child's future.

You can help them.
